Yes, The spreadsheet is fine. As long as it accurately reflects only what will be removed "at the end of the day" we should be fine. As long as it has at least the name and author it probably doesn't matter what else is on there.

Steve,

I emailed Mark yesterday concerning the progress I've made on returning the titles to the shelves. It's a slow going process, and they are still not officially in the system. But, I do have a spreadsheet that will reflect what will still be removed once those are returned. I'm assuming that's what you want?

I can have that ready pretty quickly, but I'm wondering what information you want included. Just titles, since that's the request? Or do I need to include any of the following: Author, ISBN, Copyright Date, Cost...anything else?

Thanks,

Good Afternoon,

We have received an open records request for "the updated list of titles that have been removed from all five schools." We anticipate that this is about SB 150 and have sought clarification. This is the third such request. We pulled Destiny weeding reports to submit for the other requests, but I know that some of you have amended your list and placed items back in the collection. With that said, please send me a list of all things pulled from your library due to SB 150 or SB 5 by Monday, September 18th at noon so that we can comply with the open record request.

Thanks, Steve

Banned Books Week celebrates the freedom to read and spotlights current and historical attempts to censor books in libraries and schools. The books featured during Banned Books Week have all been targeted for removal or restriction in libraries and schools. By focusing on efforts across the country to remove or restrict access to books, Banned Books Week draws national attention to the harms of censorship. The theme for Banned Books Week 2023 is "Let Freedom Read." When we ban books, we're closing off readers to people, places, and perspectives.

Mrs. Roessler,

Thanks for the invite to the competition and the sizes of the stadium. Holy Cow, Ohio has one big stadium. Do you want the current list of items pulled from the high school due to SB 150? I would like to be sure of what you're asking for. Best of luck this weekend!

Hi Mr Wade,

I'm following up regarding library books being removed from circulation in response to SB150.

I was happy to hear that you were working towards reconsidering some of the titles that were removed on first pass. (Although as I mentioned in my public comment to the board, the law does not require any book removals above the 5th grade.) It is also my understanding that you suggested parents contact the school principals if they thought a book was removed that shouldn't have been in order for its removal to be reconsidered.

To this end, I'd like to request a current and updated list of the titles that have been removed from all five district schools.

I am asking that this be provided in electronic form.

Thank you,
Shonna

Jeremy's

Is Dove soaps trying to be the wokest brand of them all? From pushing radical gender ideology onto kids, to throwing their weight behind an emerging field known as “fat liberation,” Dove — which is owned by the British-company Unilever — is making waves for all the wrong reasons.

For example, on Thursday, The Daily Wire reported that Dove has now teamed up with BLM activist Zyahna Bryant to advance “size freedom.”

Bryant, some readers might remember, became infamous for effectively ruining a white girl’s life based on something Bryant later admitted she didn’t actually hear and the woman never actually said.

Nowadays, she’s apparently such a hot commodity that international brands are dying to work with her to support certain causes. As explained by Bryant, she believes “that we should be centering the voices and experiences of the most marginalized people and communities at all times.”

If you don’t do that, presumably, then you’re discriminating against people of size like Bryant — which hampers their success, or something.

And you thought you were just being sold a bar of soap!

If you don't want to buy all the woke the Left has to offer, purchase bars of soap from Jeremy's instead. BUY HERE.

Jeremy's wants to sell you woke-free products, but certain corporations want to sell you a crash course into the victimhood mentality that has consumed the Left.

That ideology is so pervasive that even buying soap has to be politicized. In fact, if you buy from brands like Dove, your money goes to support woke causes and partner with organizations that support different forms of legislation. Dove proudly acknowledges this.

"So when I think about what fat liberation looks like, to me, it looks like centering the voices and the experiences of those who live and who maneuver through spaces and institutions in a fat body," Bryant explained in one video, while explaining that makes Dove a perfect partner in that fight.

Here's who we're dealing with, so readers can get a good sense for the gravity of the situation:

My belief is that we should be centering the voices and experiences of the most marginalized people and communities
at all times.

What does any of that have to do with personal hygiene? Well, nothing.

It has everything to do with Dove forcing its values onto you as a consumer.

Indeed, it's not the first time that Dove has advocated far-Left ideas under the guise of "body positivity."

In June 2021, for example, Dove rolled out a new initiative called
"Proud To Be Me," a "new body positivity tool for LGBTQ+ youth, brought to you by the Dove Self-Esteem Project."

"Let's help the young people in our lives feel confident and proud of who they are," Dove's website confidently said.

That "tool" was targeted to kids between the ages of 11 - 14 and focused on LGBTQ acceptance. It encouraged individuals to host group conversations with children about sex-changes and sexual orientation.

In the FAQ portion of that document, "leaders" of such conversations were provided an answer to the question, "How do I facilitate the discussion around gender dysphoria and body change vs. acceptance?"

"Leaders should speak to the fact that the way we choose to express ourselves in the world is a personal decision and there are many options for how people choose to do this,” the document said.

What sort of “options”? Oh, you know, just the life-altering ones with long-lasting and often irreversible consequences:

(...if someone is considering/has questions about body change, highlight that there are many options including choosing clothing that makes you feel good/comfortable, wearing clothing items like binders, etc. Other people may take hormones and others may choose to get some form of surgery.) (Emphasis added.)

Of course, one has to wonder how Dove can advocate “accepting” your whole body, while also letting minors know that castration and foregoing puberty might make them “proud” — but that matters not to the woke.

What matters most to woke corporations is perpetuating the notion that power in society is built upon oppressed vs. the oppressor.

So, in this case, it seems the message from Dove is that, if you’re fat, you will never find contentment unless society changes for you. Losing weight is not an option. Everybody else must change.

If you’re a confused child who thinks you should be in a different body — make it happen. Only those opposed to your well-being would discourage it, Dove seems to want consumers to believe.

Again, this a soap company we’re talking about — not the Gender Studies Program at Oberlin College.

Thankfully, you don’t have to give your money to companies like Dove anymore. You can buy from Jeremy’s Razors. Shampoo and conditioner, body wash, body soap, all of which are free from conditioner, body wash, body soap, all of which are free from parabens, sulfates, Made in USA and woke-free products. BUY HERE.

Subject: Planned Parenthood is sexualizing kids

Mark,

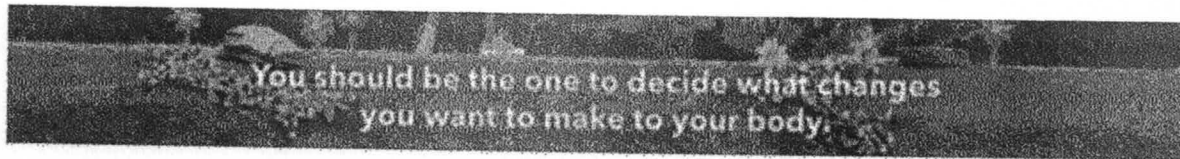

Do you know what Planned Parenthood is teaching kids about sex?

The nation's largest abortion chain, which kills over 300,000 children in the womb every year, is now targeting more innocent kids with disturbing sexual practices and transgender ideology, telling them these behaviors are normal and even healthy, as long as they are "consensual."

Why? For Planned Parenthood, it's about expanding their bottom line, which is abortion, and building the next generation of customers: your children.

A video for teens published by Planned Parenthood promotes "puberty blockers" and hormones, telling kids that "if you're trans, intersex, or nonbinary," you can obtain hormones or surgeries to "help your bodies match up to your gender identity."

I can't underscore this enough: Planned Parenthood is telling impressionable teens that disordered sexual practices are healthy and normal and that they can permanently alter their bodies through surgery or harmful chemicals — all with your tax dollars.

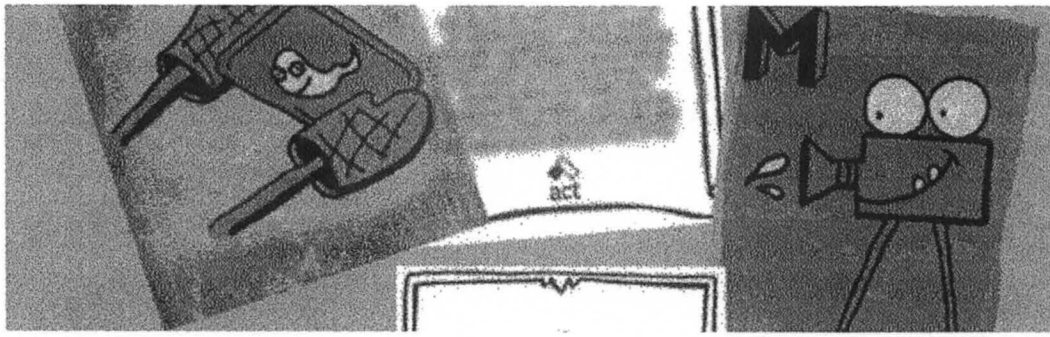

Are you as outraged as I am? Please sign the petition now to protect children and stop Planned Parenthood's dangerous sex-ed: <https://www.liveaction.org/stop-planned-parenthood/>

Another Planned Parenthood video for teens promotes its 24/7 chatbot, "Roo," which claims: "Identity is who you go to bed as. And orientation is who you go to bed with." The video takes teens through a series of questions answered by Roo, which includes how to "come out."

Planned Parenthood is working to build trust with impressionable kids, and when those same kids follow risky sexual practices that lead to abortion, Planned Parenthood is there to profit from the abortion.

This same organization was recently caught handing X-rated, pornographic cards to 14-year-olds, teaching kids that acts involving urine, defecation, and more were "normal" and "healthy." These are actual photos of the cards being distributed to minors.

If you are a parent, I'm sure you are deeply concerned.

And even if you're not a parent, surely you are disturbed about the abortion giant's sexual agenda for our nation's children.

Planned Parenthood is the nation's largest provider of sexual education. That means that if your child (or a child you know) is in public school, it's likely they are being bombarded with these dangerous messages.

Tell Planned Parenthood to stop sexualizing kids. Sign and share the petition now: <https://www.liveaction.org/stop-planned-parenthood/>

It's a fact that Planned Parenthood will do anything to increase its bottom line.

After all, if children aren't having sex, they won't be in the market for STD testing or treatment, pregnancy testing, birth control, or — of course — abortions.

Think about it. Normalizing sexual behavior among young people certainly makes them more vulnerable to predators, as well... which leads to even more abortion, which only expands Planned Parenthood's bottom line.

It's no surprise that the nation's largest abortion chain is working to destroy children and families. After all, it's all about profit, no matter what.

For Life,

Lila Rose

Subject: Here's how YOU can influence the next Supreme Court pick

Dear Mark,

I'll cut right to the chase because time is of the essence.

You have the unique opportunity right now to help shape the future of the U.S. Supreme Court and other federal courts through your partnership with AFA Action.

I'm talking about influence at the highest level—working with numerous 2024 presidential candidates to guide their Supreme Court nominee lists.

But to take advantage of this historic opportunity, I need your support so we can continue our critical research.

Here's what's at stake.

As you know, the presidential race is heating up. Republican candidates are looking for ways to ignite the conservative base, and many of them are following Donald Trump's 2016 playbook by publishing a strong Supreme Court nominee list.

The problem is that upstart presidential campaigns don't have the time, manpower, or policy expertise to conduct all the research it takes to compile a quality nominee list for the Supreme Court and other high federal courts.

That's where AFA Action's expertise is proving invaluable.

One of our primary objectives through our Center for Judicial Renewal (CJR) is to compile research on potential nominees. AFA Action has put together its own comprehensive lists of both good and questionable nominees—and we are giving this input to numerous 2024 candidates.

I can't go into a lot of detail. Much of this is confidential. But I'm talking about major candidate names you would instantly recognize.

However, this research is time-consuming. It takes a stable of legal experts. And it requires considerable funding . . . which is why I urgently need your generous donation today.

Your timely gift will help us dig deeper into the words and records of potential Supreme Court nominees for the candidates, because small chinks in the armor of even one nominee could result in disastrous, anti-family decisions down the road.

I truly believe this effort is crucial to your family, every American family, and the future of religious freedom and Christian impact in America.

Remember the liberal Supreme Court majorities and the horrific, anti-family decisions of decades past? . . . the yanking of the Bible and prayer out of schools? . . . the legalization of abortion and endorsement of gay marriage? . . . and hoping moderate justices would rule the right way once in a while?

I'm sure you remember—and I'm sure decisions like this made you just as sick as they made me.

But you know what the worst part was? Some of the most damaging votes came from justices widely considered "conservative."

They just didn't rule as conservatives . . . because they weren't properly vetted.

President Trump changed that. He started the tradition of publicizing a list of thoroughly vetted potential nominees. This resulted in three excellent new justices in just four years—and those justices have already made a major impact in turning our nation around.

However, our current majority is shaky. The most reliable conservative stalwarts on the court, Justices Clarence Thomas and Samuel Alito, will likely be the next to retire.

This means the next president could decide the new Supreme Court majority.

That's why we're working closely with multiple presidential campaigns right now, providing our nominee recommendations and vetting their lists.

And I can't say too much due to the confidential nature of these campaigns, but I can say this—we've already found significant red flags on multiple candidate lists.

One of these red flags is Amul Thapar, a potential nominee who has demonstrated that he is okay with affirming transgender pronouns.

Appointing a nominee like this would be a dangerous surrender to the woke LGBTQ+ mob, so we've sounded the alarm to every candidate considering Thapar.

This is the kind of vital information our research is uncovering—information that even other conservative policy organizations didn't catch.

But our work cannot stop there. We need continued funding to dig even deeper to uncover the hidden facts that candidate staffers and other organizations often miss.

Will you give today to fund this crucial research—and help shape the courts that shape the future of America?

Our research efforts are your way to influence federal courts, the U.S. Supreme Court, and even presidential campaigns! But time is running out to shape these candidate lists before the primaries start in January.

I hope I can count on you to join us. Let's do our part today to make sure the U.S. Supreme Court will protect families tomorrow—and for decades to come.

Sincerely,

Walker Wildmon, CEO

This will equip you—as you stand with so many others.
